

GROUND HOG
IS BLUFFEDDoesn't Dare Stick His Nose Out of His Hole, After One First Peep.

If there is such a thing as the weather being rough enough to bluff our weather prognosticator, the ground hog, into staying in his hibernation observatory, he never put in his appearance today.

Even is the sun had not been shining one look at the conditions on the surface of terra firma would cause him to duck for several days, if not for several weeks.

We are as down hearted as the hog about the weather and a great deal bluer, especially if we brave the north and west winds that now prevail. If our swinish friend sniffs so much cold in the air that there is danger of his snout getting frost bitten, he hibernates again, for we suppose he is enough like other hogs to want to root, and we do not believe he prefers rooting in the snow.

On the whole, the indications are that we will have six weeks more bad weather for we are quite sure that the badger will not brave the elements even if the sun had not been shining. The ground hog is a fighter in his den for he will whip the gamest bull terrier; but in the open air he is soon overcome. And of course he would prefer battling with the elements in his underground home.

I am not the least bit skeptical in regard to the traditions that have been handed down by our ancestors for in fact we lose much of life if we do not believe in them. Nothing helped our early settlers any more than this particular.

If the sun shone out that day they buttoned their home-made jeans coats the tighter and with renewed determination passed the remainder of the winter. If the day was cloudy preparations were begun for spring work, and the whole upshot of the business is that they prophesied the weather about as well as we, with all our modern apparatus.

FAMOUS IMPERSONATOR TO APPEAR HEREMr. Phidelia Rice Will Be Heard in This City, Under Auspices of Kentucky Wesleyan College.

Mr. Phidelia Rice, famous impersonator, will appear in this city on February 13, under the auspices of Kentucky Wesleyan College.

It could not be afforded to purchase a whole lecture course just to get to hear one man. A single bad number is no recommendation to an enterprise of this kind. Lindsey's lecture was by no means the climax of the course from which the remaining numbers fail in interest or importance. The entire course was selected with special care as to variety and quality and with the sole aim of making each number really interesting and profitable to all. There are two numbers yet to come the quality and personality of which are by no means inferior to what we have had. Mr. Phidelia Rice who will be in Winchester on the 13th day of February has attained a national reputation as an impersonator. In the season of 1909 Mr. Rice appeared on the platform at Chautauqua a number of times. His rendition elicited the most unusual ovation. He was one of the few of the season to receive the regular Chautauqua salute. Mr. Lybarger's lecture, the fifth and last number of the season, will be exception. Mr. Lybarger is an orator and a statesman. He is one of the men whose influence is really helping to shape public opinion and conduct a first-class thought in national affairs; we boarding house.

should want to know his opinions. He is ranked with no less than Bryan and La Follette as a speaker. So you see there is something good yet to come.

We realize that conditions have not been altogether favorable for a large attendance at one or two of the last numbers, and we have nothing but the most hearty appreciation for the interest already manifested by the community in their attendance in spite of the bad weather, etc., but it is hoped that neither bad weather nor a Saturday night's engagement will be available for an excuse for your absence at the next two numbers. The Saturday night we hope very carefully to avoid and the weather we trust to be in our favor.

A statement from the student committee in charge of the management of the course we hope will not be out of place or misunderstood. We are indebted for the high character of the course this year to the wise selection of Prof. Tigert before his resignation as President of Kentucky Wesleyan College.

When President Clark came he took the course off Prof. Tigert's hands assuming all financial responsibilities. So far with the hardest work of the committee the receipts have not been sufficient to cover the expense of the numbers already had by about one hundred and sixty dollars.

Now we are not asking for a subscription to help pay out and President Clark would not have made this statement himself, neither does the success of the course mean anything to the committee financially but we do not feel that President Clark will be encouraged to repeat the course again next year at so great a loss.

It does mean a great deal to the student intellectually and we feel that it ought to mean as much to the community.

It is the desire of President Clark to make the Lyceum course a permanent feature of the college work thus making the college, as it should be, the auspices of the very highest intellectual entertainments of the community. The students are enthusiastic over the idea and are willing to contribute their part to the success of the enterprise but of course it can never be realized until we are encouraged by a sufficient interest on the part of the people of the community. We trust you will not fail to see the announcements concerning the next number and then give us your attendance upon that occasion.

KENTUCKIAN IS MURDEREDRelatives of Ernest Robinson Suspect Foul Play And Will Try to Ferret Out the Matter.

Mr. Sterling, Ky., Feb. 2.—Mr. J. L. Robinson, of this city, received a telegram Thursday announcing that his son, Ernest Robinson, had been found dead just at the outskirts of Gauley, W. Va. No particulars were given. It is believed by the boy's relatives that he was the victim of foul play. Thos. Robinson, brother of the dead boy, went to West Virginia on the noon train Thursday and will take a detective with him to ferret out the matter. Young Robinson had worked with the Adams Express Company and telephone companies in this state, and was well known. He was about 30 years of age and was born and reared in this city. His resignation as President of Kentucky Wesleyan College.

A sale of finely bred horse stock was held here Thursday by Greene Bros. The best prices were $220 for Greene's Bourbon, by Bourbon Chief; Miss Maggard, by Wilson's King, for $121.50; Pearl, by Cecil Wilkes, for $187.50. The other prices ranged from $65 to $145. Twenty head were sold for a total of $1,640, or an average of about $136 per head. A pair aged males sold for $150. The sale was well attended by local buyers but no foreign buyers were present.

WOODFORD SUN REFUSES
TO SUPPORT CANTRELLDemocratic Paper at Versailles
Says It is Tired of Machine Methods of Congressman.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 2.—The Lexington Herald publishes an editorial from the Woodford Sun, the leading Democratic paper at Versailles, in which the editors, A. A. and Dan W. Bomar, declare that under no circumstances will they support Congressman J. Campbell Cantrell. If they do not, that is their own affair."

JUDGE DUNDON BACKED
TO OPPOSE CANTRELLLeading Democrats in Bourbon County Are Considering His Name
With View of Giving His Support.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 2.—The name of Judge Dennis Dundon, of Paris, Bourbon county, is being considered by the Democrats of Franklin county, as a candidate for the nomination for Congress to succeed J. Campbell Cantrell, in case the District Committee rescinds its call for Mr. Campbell's snap primary on the 16th of March.

Judge Dundon has many friends in Franklin county and within the past three days leaders of the Democracy, whose sole desire is to see the Ashland District kept up to its time-honored standard in representation and to its old-time Democratic majorities, have been considering his name with a view to giving him the support of the county if possible. Whether the snap primary is rescinded or not if he will consent to become a candidate.

Judge Dundon is one of the most popular among the younger Democrats of the district. His majorities as County Judge in Bourbon have been an index in his popularity at home and his political record is straight. In the prime of a vigorous manhood, with an eloquence that seems to have inherited and an integrity that has never been questioned he would make a strong candidate, say his friends here.

Have Seen Democracy Wrecked.

"We have seen Democracy in Kentucky practically wrecked several times by those who through manipulation rode rough-shod over the people and placed, or sought to place unfit men in office.

"Now, at the dawn of what promises to be the best day Kentucky has ever seen, the same cloud appears on the horizon in Mr. Cantrell's candidacy and 'snap primary.'

"We have stood for these things every time before and the result has been evil. There must be a stopping place somewhere, and we have arrived at it.

"It is perhaps unnecessary to say that our refusal to support Mr. Cantrell indicates no change otherwise in our attitude toward the Democratic party. Under its banner we expect constantly to fight in the future as in the past, giving to its nominees the best service in our power, but swallowing no more such doses as have several times been prepared for us late.

Will Not Support Republican.

"We will not support any man for Cabin. Many will claim that this renders our refusal to support Mr. Cantrell futile and foolish.

"We have this to say in reply. It is not our business to regulate the affairs of the Ashland District, but only to put ourselves and the Sun in the right attitude. Mr. Cantrell shall not be elected by our vote, or our support, or influence, but we will not vote with a party whose principles are diametrically opposed to ours.

"If the Democrats of this district put Mr. Cantrell in Congress by their votes, he is such a representative as they deserve and should have. We utterly decline to be forced into voting the Republican ticket because other Democrats will not do their duty, and shall feel no whit of responsibility if Mr. Cantrell is nominated. If the Democrats of the district follow our example, he will assuredly not return to Congress. If they do not, that is their own affair."

A crime is alleged to have been committed. The accused is to be judged under the law. A father and mother are bowed in sorrow, the father just fighting his way back to life. The hearts of a brother and three sisters are bleeding with grief. At the home of the accused is a wife and three innocent children. But it is not for these that we ask God's pity. It is for those that write the story and publish it in a way that will further wrench the hearts of the sorrowing ones.

"God forgive them; they know not what they do."

A COMPARISON

Fifty years ago travel was slow and distant communication more difficult than in our present decade of strenuousness. Then the life of our boys centered more about the home than it does nowadays, principally from the fact that there were not the means of travel to take him away. He grew up and lived in the shadow of the parental roof. Most of the boys worked then, while more fortunate ones went to school. Most of the entertainments were in the homes. "Parties" would take place every week or two, at which such games as "Harral John," "Skip to My Lou" and others, would be played and to my mind they were very much more edifying than the present day amusements.

But today it seems that the home is in a process of disintegration, and woe to a people when its home life ceases to be. These days boys don't do much more than sleep at home, and I might say likewise older people

Most of the day is spent at work or school and the evening at the show, poolroom or street. In fact we can't tell where they are half the time. It seems that it can't be helped. It is a condition of society. Modernism has its attendant evils. It brings new problems that we must face.

There are hundreds of new forms of amusements, but the fact that they are so many and varied, makes us satisfied only with the sensational.

Modern society makes it so necessary for man to possess a goodly amount of the world's goods in order to be "of standing" in the community that we have little time to give to promotion of the better life of our boys. These are problems that are occupying the minds of men who realize and appreciate the significance of the signs of our times.

Some of our methods of work must be readjusted to fit changed conditions of society. Let us get together and consider how we may surmount the difficulties and solve some of the problems of present day Boys' Work.

GROWS HAIR ON BALD HEADS

Bald-Headed People May Get a New Chance in Life.

In these days when youth is the moving factor in business, when a man makes his mark at thirty-five and is ready to retire at forty-five when business houses pension the man we call "middle aged" rather than allow his lagging influence to intrude upon the commercial rush, a bald head is almost fatal to any man's hopes. The following must therefore prove interesting to people who are losing their hair or who are bald.

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and anti-septic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, and also creates clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. Yet, it is not a coloring matter or dye.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant remedy for hair and scalp troubles.

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of Resorcin, Beta Napthol, and Pilocarpin. It helps to make the scalp healthy, to nourish the hair, to stimulate the follicles. Where the head is already bare, it enters the follicles, revitalizes the roots, supplies nourishment, and stimulates a new growth.

We want you to try a few bottles of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, on our personal guarantee that the trial will not cost you a penny if it does not give you absolute satisfaction.

That's proof of our faith in this remedy and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except, of course, where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, the follicles closed and grown over, and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done to hundreds of others it will do for you. In any event you cannot lose anything by giving it a trial on our liberal guarantee. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. GOOD SHOW

George Ade's New Play, "The Old Town" to Appear at Lexington Opera House, February.

At last we are enabled to announce the coming for the first time of Montgomery and Stone at Lexington whose reputations for wonderful theatrical successes we have been indebted to on more than one occasion to the various number two companies who have vended their endeavors on the strength of the remarkable popularity of the originals, who we are happy to announce will be at the Lexington Opera House matinee and night, Wednesday, February 7.

That at last they are coming will be joyful news indeed to our theatregoers who will smile cheerfully in anticipation of the fun in seeing them in George Ade's newest play "The Old Town."

These clever entertainers have proven themselves over associated with musical comedy since they first made themselves known to the patrons of the high-class theatres in "The Wizard of Oz" ad "The Red Mill" some eight years ago. Indeed their personal hold upon that popular fancy which is so frequently referred to as fickle has been demonstrated often and may now be reckoned as a very certain quantity in predicting crowded houses for "The Old Town" when they present it in Lexington.

Finds Profit in Toys.

A woman, who, after five years of married life found herself with an invalid husband and no source of income, made toys, such as she had seen in Germany, and a good market was found for them in the department stores. She showed the toys first to children and profited by their comments upon them. She says dolls are especially profitable.

Joke on Composer.

Signor Leoncavallo once had a rather amusing experience. Being in a strange town where "I Pagliacci" was being given, he attended the performance to see how it was rendered, and falling into conversation with his neighbor, proceeded, by way of a joke, to criticize the work unmercifully. Next morning he found in the local newspaper a long article reproducing all his statements and headed, "Leoncavallo's opinion of 'Pagliacci'!"

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. C. W. Post, of Lexington, a well-known and very brilliant speaker, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church at the morning and evening services. Everybody is cordially invited.

The Angler's Bait.

A well known angler at Petersboro having obtained a wasp's nest containing a large number of grubs, placed the nest in the kitchen oven to kill the grubs so that he could use them for bait. The next morning he went to get the grubs, but on opening the oven door a swarm of wasps flew out. The oven was not hot enough to kill the grubs, but was sufficiently warm to hatch them.—London Daily Mail.

PURE MILK

The state pure food authorities at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station reported Tuesday to County Attorney Scott Bullitt, of Louisville, sixty-five cases for selling watered or skimmed milk against dairymen supplying Louisville and certain restaurants. These cases resulted from the extensive inspections that have recently been made throughout the whole of the Louisville milk field and other parts of Kentucky.

The samples were collected from the milk depots, the dairymen, the restaurants, the hotels and other places where milk is served, and when a sample was found to be watered or skimmed, further investigation was made to determine who was responsible. About 700 samples were analyzed in Louisville and 65 cases reported for prosecution. In most instances the milk was taken from the dairymen's herds to determine how much water had been added to the milk as supplied by the dairymen's cows.

Red Cross Dairy (Phone 889-x.) supplies to patrons a pure, clean, and sanitary Holstein and grade Jersey milk; not watered.

Present "Paralysis of Mining Districts" Also Due to Laxity in Enforcement of Assessment Work.

Proposed amendments of the well-established laws relating to metalli-ferous minerals always raise the warmest discussion. With the opinion of mining men in general favoring revision of mining laws of the United States and with commission after commission appointed by various bodies to suggest improvements, the statutes have remained practically unchanged for nearly 40 years, while the geology of ore deposits and the technology of metal mining have made marvelous progress.

Most important, perhaps, if any amended mining law would be provision for enforced development, a present law but not made effective in its workings. A requirement of actual use as a condition of occupancy of mineral land can not be regarded as either novel or radical.

As regards the large acreage of undeveloped land in many mining camps to which patent has already been issued, it is perhaps true that the situation is without relief, unless the western Australia plan is adopted, whereby the Government steps in and permits mining under a lease, the proceeds of which are assessed, collected, and paid over to the owner.

The principle invoked seems to be that no property owner can rightfully oppose the development of the resources of the state.

In the case of unpatented claims a remedy should be sought for what has been termed "the paralysis of mining districts," and the rigid requirement of annual assessment work should be made actual and effective by inspection and supervision, in order to put an end to the present procedure of allowing a claim to lie idle for practically two years after its location where claims are held year after year with only perfunctory compliance, or even without any performance of assessment work—a type of local disregard for law that is in striking contrast to the observation accorded to the district customs and regulations of earlier days, whereby the right of possession was made absolutely dependent upon continuous operation.

PLENTY OF QUAIL LEFT.

The following letter from one of Mr. B. D. Goff's mountain friends will be of interest to bird hunters: Brum, Ky., January 30, 1912.

Mr. B. D. Goff,

Old Boy:

After some delay I'll answer yours of some time back. The reason I have not answered ere now, the weather has been so cold and so much snow, I thought that I would wait until the spell would break and see if the quail was all froze to death. They went to the cliffs and I don't think any of them froze for I see many now. They have come back to the fields to feed and they seem to be plentiful, in fact, more than there was before the freeze, so I think we will have some for next fall to kill. Hoping that you and family are all enjoying God's blessings, this leaves us as well as usual. Give the Old Boss, Brother W. R. Sphar, my best regards. You spoke something concerning the paper, we received it regular up to the 20th of this month, but none since.

CASCARETS INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascarets Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliary or Sick Stomach

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the severes and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing too.

NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY

How Matthew Stanley Quay Gained Political Victory.

Familiarity With Contents of the Senate Document Room Enabled Him to Talk the Wilson Sugar Tariff to Death.

By E. J. EDWARDS.

Matthew Stanley Quay, chairman of the Republican national committee which carried on the successful presidential campaign of 1888, and United States senator from Pennsylvania from 1887 to 1905, gained the reputation of being the most expert political manager of his time. The public, however, did not know that Senator Quay found his chief recreation in his library and was almost as good an authority upon literature, classic and modern, as he was upon politics.

While he was in the senate Mr. Quay devoted much of his leisure to the reading of the documents contained in the senate document room, and he was almost as familiar with those which bore upon tariff discussions as was the famous Amzi Smith, who carried in his head a complete record of all the documents, thousands in number, in the senate document room, of which he was superintendent. This acquaintance with general literature, and especially with the documents in the senate document room bearing upon tariff questions, was the weapon upon which Senator Quay relied for defeating one clause in the Wilson tariff bill of 1894.

Soon after the bill was reported to the senate and while it was still in the senate committee, it was observed that Senator Quay made frequent visits to the document room and was in earnest conversation with Amzi Smith. When a colleague met him the day as he came away from the document room with a bundle of documents under his arm, Quay was asked what he proposed doing with all those documents.

"Oh, I may have to make speech on the tariff bill," was the reply.

After the bill was reported to the senate Quay announced that he did not approve of the sugar clause of the bill, and that he proposed to speak in opposition to it. He gave notice of the day when he would speak, and at the appointed time he would speak, and in his speech was very quiet. His manner was quiet. He used none of the arts of rhetoric; but at the same time he impressed upon the senators the fact that he proposed fighting the sugar clause to the end. He occupied all of the time set apart for daily discussion and then, as he took his seat, Quay remarked: "Mr. President, I intend to go on with my speech tomorrow."

When the morrow came Senator Quay again took up all the time set apart for daily discussion, concluding with the announcement that he would continue his remarks the following day, when the hour for daily discussion at hand, he arose and wandered off into the field of literature, modern and classic, being careful, however, to apply such literary comments as he had to make to the subject matter of his speech. And just before he sat down on that third day he gave notice that his speech was not yet finished.

So, upon the fourth day, Senator Quay rose to continue his speech. He had the right to the floor; no one could take it away from him. And upon this occasion he sent to the clerk's desk a large volume, asking that the clerk read certain marked passages therein. The clerk drowsed away for more than an hour and had not finished the reading of the extracts when the hour for adjournment came. Therefore, Senator Quay's unfinished speech went over to the next day, when it was observed that Quay had upon his desk a large number of Senate documents and many volumes. A curious colleague asked him how long he expected to speak.

"Until doomsday, or until this congress adjourns, or until the senate votes down the sugar schedule," was the reply. "I have tariff documents here by the yard; I have volumes bearing upon tariff questions that would fill a library. I purpose entertaining the senate with these volumes and extracts from these documents, for these are to be considered a part of my speech."

It was soon realized that Senator Quay had the senate at his mercy under the rule of the senate which provided that, whenever a senator announced that upon a certain day and in the hours set apart for addressing the senate he should speak, he had the right to occupy the full time set apart each day for discussion until his speech was finished. Quay was prepared to talk the tariff bill to death. His speech had become a perfect morsel of his own remarks and interpolated paragraphs and extracts from numerous tariff documents and volumes of literature and was without precedent in the history of the senate.

At last a senator said to him: "Aren't you tiring yourself out, Quay?"

"The senate is more likely to be tired of me than I am of myself," was the reply.

And in that statement Senator Quay was correct. The senate tired of him, acknowledged that he had the body by the throat, so to speak, and was only too glad to concede all that Quay had been fighting for for more than two weeks. His peculiar style of oratory had won a victory seldom gained by oratory in the United States senate.
